FOR CLERK OF COURT OF APPEAUS R. R. BOLLING.

MONDAY JUNE, 4 1866. ---from the Louisville Dem le givingvarions extract ng Green Louisville Courie extracts are damagin; errible They are annihi ok the course that the Louisville Conrie took, claim to be a Democratic leader Wasn't the Conrier the lowest-down radi cal in the whole country? What low r down radicals could there possibly than those who were and probably are for the utter destruction of the Constitution and the Union?

The Conrier has not changed its opin ions or feelings since it was published Bowling Green. It is the same robe paper now that it was then. It isn't so outspoken as it was, for it has no General Buckner to protect it. Still it will be pro tected in all it may choose to say by the whole of the rebel party.

Gerrit Smith, the Sage of Peter boro, N. Y, has come to the surface again in a letter-which he has sent to ns-to Chief Justice Chase upon the trial of Jefferson Davis and the late civil war in general, in which there is an incongruon medley of independence, courage, generosity, good sense, nonsense, fanaticism and whatever else, with these, goes to make up that odd compound known as Gerrit Smith. He pleads earnestly for Judge Chase to hold that he has no righ to try Jefferson Davis, that the latter needs no pardon, but should be as free as any of the freedmen to go where he pleases, that the South became a nation, and was not guilty of any treason and needs no pardon, and is now in the condition simply of a conquered enemy, with deal only under the laws of nations, and not under the Constitution of the United States; that the conqueror should dea generously with the conquered, and wir them back by love; that no guaranties fo the furnre are needed, and that nonshould be asked, that the right of Revolution in Republics should not be denied, for, if it is, it will be quoted against us by monarchists hereafter, and dothe cause of Republicanism more harm than good that the South has already suffered terr bly, and, though her heart is still hard, i is no harder than the heart of the North and that both North and South need common repentance for common sins' that the North especially should repent for refusing "gratitude to the brave, forgiving, and magnanimous black saviors of our country and for throwing "them ngain under the feet of their old oppres sors" "by denying them suffrage". Finally, "we must subject the South to no changes and no disabilities which are n indispensable. If the breaking up of her large landed estates to parcel them out to her white and black poor is not demand ed by her people, we must not insist upon it. If, by putting the ballot in the hands of her blacks, it will not be necessary, in order to save her, to withhold it for a sea son from her whites who were involved in tional taxes'? The ways of Providence are inscruta-Why the Almighty did not make G + t Smith a magnificent man when He cam so near doing it is not for as irrev Mr. Smith common sense when infusing into him so much other sense and endow ing him with so many generous qualities, t were vain to query. It is sufficient to gay that Mr Smith lacks this great essen tial of a man, common sense, and which we almost think cometimes is more important to him than anything clse and everything else put together, so far as his conduct in the civil affairs of life is con-

the guilt of the War, then are there strong reasons why we should not insist upon the probation. One thing more. The South

s poor, and the North is still rich. Would Gerrit has become crazy on the subject of the negro. After the John Brown raid, his mind became so affected-doubtless with the conviction that he was in some way responsible for a part of the guit of the affair-that his friends were obliged to send him to the madhouse. The trav e is, in his view, the foulest and the blackest ingratitude. His whole motive in taking the ground that the South be came a nation, and must therefore now be treated according to the laws of nations. and not municipal law, or the Con tita tion of the United States, is to give the National Government the entire control of all questions in the States lately in revolt, in order that the said government may confer suffrage upon the blacks thus ignoring all States and the rights o States. In other words, he agrees with essionists that the States went out of the Union, ntterly destroyed themselves, and are consequently no longe States, but merely conquered provinces. They must consequently be treated ac cording to the laws of nations. The Gov ernment, being the conqueror, can impose its own terms npon them, and therefore can confer suffrage npon the blacks and take it away from the whites, if that be thought necessary. But, then, Mr. Smith generons, and, having made voters of the negroes and disfranchised the whites for some years, he would do his best to win back the Sonthern people by love He would have a grand fraternal embracing upon these easy and magnanimo conditions. He would even remit all taxes for five or ten years in the South. In the mean time, as the South became a nation, there was no treason committed by anybody and nobody needs any pardon, much less trial for any acts committed, which are revolutionary acts, and consequently if not creditable arc at least quite harmless. All these propositions Mr. Smith puts forth with the ntmost gravity and reason upon them very earnestly, quoting various authorities to sustain his various positions. Mr. Smith is said to be an elo quent speaker, as he is certainly a ready and smooth writer. If he only had a proper balance of mind, or, we as said before, common sense, he would be a statesman. As it is, he is hardly more than a nnatic, despite his boldness and decided In all he says against the shedding of more blood, in all his apostrophies to generosity and humanity, and in all his sympathies with the suffering, we heartily agree, but he has so mixed up absurdities and lunacies with all these fine sentiments as to destroy the effect of the whole. It remains to be said that he thinks the President's policy most "unwise", and that it has "sadly demoralized the South", though for that policy-charitable Mr. Smith-"he is not to be severely judged" since it "grew almost necessarily out of his proslavery education!" This will do Perhaps we may give his letter entir one of these days as a curiosity.

What's the Matter?—The Journal had not yet placed Bolling's name at the head of its columns, nor has it referred to him ditorially. What's the matter? Isn't Bolling the nominee of your convention' No dodging or flinching, neighbor. The Courier says, that, up to Saturday we had not referred to Mr. Bolling "edi torially." The Courier doesn't seem to care what it says. It is reckless. On Friday we said this in our first editoria and patriotic purposes. It recommended a candidate who is unexceptionable. It is, and has ever been, a thorough Union man. He is the best Clerk that ever occupied the position he occupies. This important truth is universally recognized portant truth is universally recognized. All the judges and lawyers in the State knew it. Mr. Bolling, as a clerk of old Leslie Combs, performed all the duties, all the work, of the office, and he did it perfectly. Down upon the Mystic Tie. The Congregational Association of Ill nois, at a late meeting, had the subject secret societies under consideration, and a committee reported the following Pope's

Secrecy Its character

A presumption against secrecy arises from the known fact that evil-doers of all kinds resort to secrecy. This is for two reasons: (1) To avoid opposition and retribution, and (2) to avoid exposure to disgrace. The adulterer seeks secrecy, so do the thief and the counterfeiter, so do conspirators for evil ends.

so do the thief and the counterfeiter, so do conspirators for evil ends.

Secrecy, whenever resorted to for evil ends, is wrong. But may it not he resorted to for good ends? and is it not recognized as often wise and right in the Word of God? We answer in the affirmative. There is a certain degree of reserve, or secrecy, that should invest every individual. Our whole range of thought and feeling ought not to be promisenously made known. Where is a degree of secrecy necessary in the order of social intercourse and discipline of the family? There is secrecy needed in dealing with faults and sins. Christ adopts this principle in His discipline. He says, Tell him his fault between thee and him slone. If he repents, conceal it. There are confidential communications for important ends, or for council.

Concealment may be used as a defense against enemies, as in the case of the spins and contains or the measurages of David or against enemies, as in the case of the spice of Joshua, or the messengers of David, or when Eljah hid himself by the rook Cherith, by Gods order. So God hid s the good in His secret place and under His love of human applause, hence alms and prayer are to be in secret. God also resorts to secrecy in an eminent degree. He hides Himself. He dwells in thick darkness. It is His glory to concess his designs. In part this is inevitable from His treatness, in part he resorts to it of set is a special honor and blessing of the od that He discloses His secrets to Secrecy, then, is not of necessity wrong.

Its character depends upon the ends for which it is used, and the circumstances in which it is used. There is a secrecy of

In conclusion, we would present to the sociation the following principles for

I That in dealing with secret organizes this Association recognizes the used of a careful statement of principle and a wise discrimination of things the

3. That organizations whose whole object and general method are well unit restood, and are known to be laudable and Domestic Cleanliness. On one occasion sickness prevailed in family, which fail d to o tain relief from Where not only the proceedings of society are secret, but even the fact of the secret of the moral, such as associations for purely lit-erary or reformatory purposes, are not to be sweepingly condemned by reason of a thin veil of secrecy covering their precise methods and procedures; yet we doem that onter veil of secrecy to be unwise

On the other hand, if secrecy is resorted without reason, if it is made the basis false pretences, if it assumes the exist-

All men, as deprawed and grilty of regeneration and pardon through intervention of Christ.

There is no access to the true God y through Christ. "I am the way, and truth, and the life. No man cometh to the Father but through Me."

"Whosoever denieth the Son, the me hath not the Father; but he that acovelegeth Son hast the Father also."

Christ is ignored, and and the God ature or creation is professedly worped, and morality inculcated solely on mal grounds, then such worship is not speed by the real God and Father of universe; for He looks on it as involving and ady or two an epidemic dyscatery throughout the establishment, which immediately ceased on a supply of better ws-and it for the sake of accommo-ting them with a common ground of nion, Christ is ignored, and and the God anture or creation is professedly wor-nipped, and morality incultated colely on atural grounds, then such worship is not coepted by the real God and Pather of he universe; for He looks on it as involving the rejection and dishonor, nay, cruciation, of His Son. As to Christ, He toltrates no neutrality. He who is not for lim is against Him. These principles do the want of it, about a house, is demonstrated in some of the next is larger to the province of secrets. They the want of it, about a house is demon-strated in some of the model lodging-houses in London, standing in the midst the sagainst Him. These principles do not involve the question of secrecy. They have neither science nor art of impart as a reward of membership. That they have neither science nor art of impart as a reward of membership. The tume was when there was a society, or octeties, of working masons, coming down the dold Roman Empire, and extending through the middle ages. There were cach erected by such a corporation, and state their skill and energy. These principles do not exclude worship and prayer for societies. In any societies, true worship in the name of Christ will be accepted. true worship in the name of Christ will be peccepted.

Let us now apply these principles to the societies. Concerning these we hold it to be plain:

That they have neither science nor art to impart as a reward of membership. The time was when there was a society, or societies, of working masons, coming down from the old Roman Empire, and extending through the middle ages. There were societies of great power, and wrought great works. The cathedrals of the middle ages were each erected by such a corporation, and attest their skill and energy.

But these corporations of working maalled a "standing army" or barrack life. not more than twenty persons in a thou-and should die in a year, because in one ease they have nothing to do but to keep heir persons and habitation most perfect-

In England twenty-two persons die anmally out of each thousand; in the United
